

PPL Electric Utilities and National Park Service Reach Settlement Allowing Vegetation Maintenance on Key Power Line

PRNewswire
ALLENTOWN, Pa.

PPL Electric Utilities has reached a court-approved settlement with the National Park Service that will allow the utility to trim vegetation around a key power line in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area near Bushkill, Pa.

"We're pleased that we were able to resolve this matter amicably," said David E. Schleicher, vice president-Transmission.

Under an agreement reached Tuesday (8/17), PPL Electric Utilities will have immediate access to park service land to perform needed vegetation maintenance work on the 1.5-mile section of 230-kilovolt power line. The company also will be entitled to perform routine vegetation maintenance in future years, after reasonable advance notice.

PPL Electric Utilities Corporation, a subsidiary of PPL Corporation (NYSE: PPL) that provides electricity delivery services to about 1.4 million customers in Pennsylvania, has consistently ranked among the best companies for customer service in the United States.
